The following pages contain reproductions of key data summaries and brochures produced by the department throughout the year for the Alaska State Legislature, the UA Board of Regents, and other state and internal entities.
The University of Alaska (UA) system covers an area one-fifth the size of the contiguous United States. Alaska was still a territory in 1915 when the United States Congress set aside federal lands near Fairbanks for a land grant college. In 1917, Alaska's territorial legislature approved a statute establishing the Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines, which opened in 1922. In 1935, the institution was renamed the University of Alaska. There are three regional university centers in the UA System, along with the statewide administration: UA Anchorage, UA Fairbanks, and UA Southeast, each with extended community campus sites across the state.

• UA enrolled 33,581 students in fall 2012, a decrease of 4.0 percent from fall 2011. This may be due to a combination of fewer high school graduates and the improving employment rate in Alaska.
• As enrollment decreased across the system, UA delivered 2.4 percent less student credit hours in fall 2012 (285,296) than it did in fall 2011.
• Nonetheless, the proportion of students seeking a degree continued to increase, from 70 to 72 percent since last fall. This trend is indicative of the university’s continuing investment in student advising, the introduction of Alaska Performance Scholarship, and the implementation of the ‘Stay on Track’ campaign in fall 2011.
• UA enrolled 434 new UA Scholars this fall, 255 of whom enrolled at UAA, 143 at UAF, and 41 at UAS.
• In fall 2012, UA students were awarded 994 new Alaska Performance Scholarships (APS), an increase of 16 percent in headcount for a total amount of $1.7 million. Of these recipients, 600 attended UAA, 330 attended UAF, and 64 attended UAS.
• The proportion of Alaska Native/American Indian students remained the same as last year, reaching 5,006 students or 15 percent of the student body.

Located in Anchorage and on community campuses in Southcentral Alaska, the University of Alaska Anchorage (UAA) is committed to serving the higher education needs of the state, its communities, and its diverse peoples. UAA is an open access university with academic programs leading to occupational endorsements; undergraduate and graduate certificates; and associate, baccalaureate, and graduate degrees in a rich, diverse, and inclusive environment. In addition to the largest campus in Anchorage, the Kenai Peninsula College, Kodiak College, Matanuska-Susitna College and Prince William Sound Community College are integral parts of UAA. Instruction is also offered in numerous other sites in Southcentral Alaska and the Aleutian Islands. UAA has exchange and cooperative agreements with Britain, Canada, China, Finland, Japan, Korea, and Russia.

- Almost 60.0 percent of students in the UA system took at least one course from UAA in fall 2011.
- 58.7 percent of students enrolled at UAA in fall 2011 were enrolled part-time.
- 11.6 percent of UAA students identified themselves as Alaska Native/American Indian in fall 2011.
- More than two-thirds of UAA students were younger than 30 in fall 2011 with an average age of 29.
- UAA delivered 177,025 student credit hours (SCH) in fall 2011, excluding auditors, with more than three-quarters in lower division and preparatory courses.
- More than 56.0 percent of UA Scholars with the UA System took a class at UAA in fall 2011.
Profile Trends: University of Alaska Anchorage

The report card above provides an assessment of key performance measures, common across the University of Alaska system. These are necessary, but not sufficient, to describe the breadth and depth of UAA’s efforts toward meeting the priorities set forth by the UA Board of Regents.

UAA’s performance has increased in some measures since FY11. Since FY11, university generated revenue has increased by 2.3 percent. Student credit hours have grown by 3.0 percent over FY11. UAA’s grant-funded research activity in FY12 climbed to $14.1 million, an increase of more than $1 million over FY11. The six year graduation rate for first-time, full-time baccalaureate degree seeking freshmen has remained stable between FY11 and FY12, staying at 26.0 percent. However, the number of high demand job area degrees awarded has decreased by 7 percent since FY11 to a total of 1,662.

- UAA employed 665.6 regular faculty full-time equivalents (FTE) and 258.0 adjunct FTE in fall 2012.
- Unrestricted instruction accounted for more than 83.0 percent of regular faculty FTE in fall 2012.
- Annual degrees, certificate and endorsement awards have grown by more than 34.0 percent since FY04.
- 72.0 percent of academic credentials awarded by UAA in FY12 were in programs qualifying recipients to work in High Demand Job Area careers.
- Since fall 2002, UAA has employed 125.8 more regular, instructional faculty FTE, an increase of almost than 24.0 percent.

University of Alaska Fairbanks (UAF) is Alaska’s flagship university campus. Students can choose from a wide variety of programs, ranging from occupational endorsements through doctoral degrees. UAF offers a place for study and service that respects diversity and celebrates collaboration. UAF rural campuses span the state and reflect the rich traditions and cultures of Alaska’s Native communities. UAF has more than a dozen research centers and institutes that focus on the Arctic. Research and academic institutions around the world look to UAF as a leader in arctic studies and related education. UAF also has statewide public service and outreach, such as the Cooperative Extension Service and the Marine Advisory Program.

- 31.9 percent of UA students take classes at UAF, with more than 11,000 enrolled for credit in fall 2011.
- The majority of students (57.5 percent) taking a class at UAF enrolled part-time at the UA system level.
- More than 20.0 percent of UAF students identify themselves as Alaska Native/Indian, the highest proportion of the MAUs.
- More than 60.0 percent of enrolled students were younger than 30, with an average age of 30 in fall 2010.
- 84.8 percent of students originated from Alaska, 14.5 percent from out-of-state, and the remainder from other countries.
- 9.1 percent of student credit hours were delivered in pursuit of graduate degrees in fall 2011.

UAF REPORT CARD
FY11-12 Performance

- University-Generated Revenue
- Academic Awards in High Demand Job Area Programs
- Grant-Funded Research Expenditures
- First-Time Full-Time Baccalaureate Degree-Seeking Freshmen Six Year Graduation Rate
- Student Credit Hours
- Citations Reported by the Web of Science
- Publications Reported by the Web of Science

The report card above provides an assessment of key performance measures, common across the University of Alaska system. These are necessary, but not sufficient, to describe the breadth and depth of UAF’s efforts toward meeting the priorities set forth by the UA Board of Regents.

UAF increased performance on some measures since FY11. In FY12, UAF awarded 110 more High Demand Job Area degrees than in FY11. First-time full-time baccalaureate degree seeking freshmen six year graduation rate grew by 7.4 percent from FY11 to FY12. Student credit hours climbed to 195 thousand credit hours in FY12, an increase of 2.6 percent over FY11. However, UAF’s university generated revenue decreased from about $245 million in FY11 to almost $238 million in FY12. This change is closely tied to UAF’s research activities, which experienced a decrease of 5.3 percent in FY12 over FY11.

- Degrees, certificates and credentials awarded by the UAF MAU increased by more than one-third from FY04 to FY12, with more than 63.0 percent of FY12 degrees awarded in programs qualifying recipients to work in High Demand Job Area careers.
- UAF employed 665.6 regular faculty full-time equivalents (FTE) in fall 2012, with unrestricted instruction accounting for 58.3 percent. 16.0 percent of regular faculty FTE * are paid from external grants for research and other activities, by far the highest proportion of any MAU.
- The number of regular instructional faculty FTE grew to 388.1 in fall 2012, an increase of 23.8 percent over fall 2004. Supplementing regular instructional faculty, UAF employed 143.0 adjunct faculty FTE in fall 2012, an increase of 17.5 percent since fall 2004.

From its start in 1917 as a mining and agricultural school, the Fairbanks campus of the University of Alaska Fairbanks (UAF) is the oldest campus in the UA system. The campus offers undergraduate degrees ranging from accounting to Yup’ik Language and Culture and graduate degrees are available in a wide range of academic fields, and UAF is the only doctoral degree-granting institution in the UA system. Fairbanks campus is the principal research center for the statewide university system, and houses some of the world's top research scientists pursuing knowledge that directly benefits the people of Alaska and the Arctic.

- The Fairbanks campus enrolled 5,936 students for credit in fall 2011, an 11.2 percent increase over fall 2007.
- Fairbanks campus had the highest percentage of graduate-level student credit hours of any campus (16.0 percent).
- Women represented approximately 53.4 percent of the student population in fall 2011, one of the lowest proportions of any campus in the UA system.
- 76.6 percent of enrollment originated from Alaska, 18.6 percent from out-of-state, and the remainder percent from other countries.
- Degrees awarded by Fairbanks campus increased nearly 40.0 percent from FY04, to 838 in FY12, with more than 60.0 percent of graduates in programs qualifying recipients to work in High Demand Job Area careers.
Campus Profile Trends: Fairbanks

- Fairbanks campus research faculty were awarded and are actively working on 1,019 externally funded research grants and contracts, and produced approximately $107 million in externally funded research activity in FY12.
- Every $1 in State of Alaska general fund money invested in research yields more than $5 in external, primarily federal, research funding. State general fund directed to research operations at Fairbanks totaled $21.2 million in FY12 and provided the core investment needed to attract the $107 million in external revenue to Alaska.
- UAF research units accounted for almost 90 percent of UA expenditures for research in areas of significant importance to Alaska (ASIA) -- i.e., resource development, marine and ocean science, biological sciences and Arctic health. Together, the Geophysical Institute and the UAF School of Fisheries and Ocean Science accounted for almost 40 percent of ASIA research expenditures.
- Grant-funded research projects at UAF in FY12 represent multi-year awards of more than $806 million.

The University of Alaska Fairbanks (UAF) Chukchi Campus is located in Kotzebue, the economic, transportation, political, communication, and educational hub of the Northwest Arctic Borough. The borough is composed of 7,400 residents in 11 Inupiaq villages spread out over an area of 36,000 sq. miles (about the size of Indiana). There are no roads between any of the borough villages and eighty percent residents are Inupiaq. Kotzebue and most of the region is located above the Arctic Circle. Kotzebue is 370 miles from Fairbanks and the nearest road system and 175 miles from Russia.

- The Chukchi campus enrolled 338 students for credit in fall 2011, 64.1 percent more than the enrollment in fall 2007.
- 85.2 percent of students taking at least one class at Chukchi enrolled part-time at the UA system level.
- Chukchi enrolled 138 degree-seeking students in fall 2011, representing growth of 91.7 percent over the past 4 years.
- Ethnic minority students represented more than half of Chukchi’s student population in fall 2011.
- Almost half of the student body identified as Alaska Native/American Indian in fall 2011.
- More than half of the student body was 30 or older in fall 2011, with an average age of 35.

The Northwest Campus (NWC) is a branch campus of the University of Alaska Fairbanks (UAF) and is part of UAF’s College of Rural and Community Development. The Northwest Campus serves 15 Alaska Native villages in the surrounding 36,000 square miles, an area the size of the state of Indiana. NWC and its service villages are entirely off the road system requiring commercial airline or private charter for the majority of travel, even between villages. The nearest major airport is in Anchorage, 550 air miles from Nome. Travel to or from the surrounding villages requires an additional flight in and out of Nome via small commercial aircraft.

- NWC enrolled 320 students for credit in fall 2011, a decrease of 38.5 percent over fall 2007.
- The campus enrolled 8 UA Scholars in fall 2011.
- Part-time students accounted for 91.3 percent of enrollment.
- 54.7 percent of students identified as Alaska Native/American Indian.
- 40.6 percent of students were 30 or older, with an average age of 31.
- 98.1 percent of enrolled students originated from Alaska, 1.6 percent from out-of-state and the rest from other countries.
- NWC delivered more than 800 student credit hours (SCH), excluding auditors, in fall 2011, all of which were delivered in lower division and preparatory level courses.
Campus Profile: Rural College

The University of Alaska Fairbanks (UAF) Rural College is a centralized component of UAF’s College of Rural and Community Development (CRCD). It facilitates statewide delivery of academic and vocational education and outreach with an emphasis on Alaska Natives and underserved communities, and also serves as the center for support and development of distance delivery of education throughout the university. CRCD geographically serves nearly two-thirds of the state, representing more than 160 primarily Native Alaska communities.

- The Rural College enrolled 2,890 students for credit in fall 2011, an increase of 34.5 percent over the past four years.
- More than half of students taking one or more classes at the Rural College were enrolled full-time at the UA system level.
- Nearly one in five Rural College students was Alaska Native/American Indian in fall 2011.
- The number of degree-seeking students reached 2,473 in fall 2011, 39.7 percent more than in fall 2007.
- More than two-thirds of the students were under the age of 30 with an average age of 28.
- More than 12,000 student credit hours (SCH) were delivered in fall 2011, excluding auditors.

- UAS enrolled 131 UA Scholars in fall 2011.
- The majority of students (71.6 percent) taking a course from UAS were enrolled part-time at the UA system level.
- Among all students enrolled in fall 2011, 14.9 percent were Alaska Native/Indian and a total of 19.7 percent identified themselves as ethnic minority.
- More than half of enrolled students were younger than 30. The average age in fall 2011 was 33, the oldest among the three MAUs.
- Enrollment headcount was 91.5 percent from Alaska residents, 7.7 percent from out-of-state students, and the remainder from international students.
- More than 70.0 percent of student credit hours (SCH) were delivered in lower division and preparatory level courses.

* Headcount by race is unduplicated. "Hawaiian/Pacific Islander" was recorded as "Asian" prior to Fall 2009.

Profile Trends: University of Alaska Southeast

The report card above provides an assessment of key performance measures, common across the University of Alaska system. These are necessary, but not sufficient, to describe the breadth and depth of UAS’s efforts toward meeting the priorities set forth by the UA Board of Regents.

The number of high demand job area degrees awarded has grown, increasing by more than 3.3 percent over FY11 and reaching an all-time high of 406 graduates. However, first-time full-time baccalaureate degree-seeking freshmen six year graduation rate decreased by almost 49.2 percent from FY11 to 15.2 percent in FY12. Student tuition and fee revenues grew to $13 million in FY12, an increase of 4.8 percent over FY11. UAS delivered 3,765 non-credit instructional units in FY12, an increase of more than 15 percent. Grant-funded research activity in FY12 grew slightly to $1.14 million.

- UAS employed 102.3 regular, instructional faculty full-time equivalents (FTE) and 43.3 adjunct faculty FTE* in fall 2012.
- The number of regular instructional faculty FTE has grown by 14.2 percent (12.7 FTE) since fall 2003, while adjunct faculty FTE decreased by 6.5 percent (3.0 FTE*) over the same time.
- Degrees, certificates and credentials awarded by UAS more than doubled from FY04 to FY12.
- More than three-quarters of FY12 degrees were awarded in High Demand Job Area programs.

Campus Profile: Ketchikan

The Ketchikan Campus is located in Alaska’s southernmost major city, the first port of call for cruise ships entering the state. Small class sizes offer a rich educational experience with the faculty who choose to live and work in a place where dramatic natural vistas inspire scientific, artistic and work force pursuits.

The Ketchikan campus enrolled 653 students enrolled for credit in fall 2011, marking an increase of 36.0 percent since fall 2007.

- The majority of students (64.5 percent) taking a class at Ketchikan enrolled part-time at the UA system level.
- Women represented 60.0 percent of the student population.
- The average age for students enrolled last fall was 32. Overall, 52.5 percent of enrolled students were younger than 30.
- Of the enrollment headcount, 92.3 percent were Alaska residents, 7.4 percent out-of-state students, and 0.3 percent international students.
- The Ketchikan campus delivered 3,177 student credit hours (SCH) in fall 2011 with 86.8 percent of them being lower division and developmental level courses.

*Headcount by race is unduplicated. “Hawaii Native/Pacific Islander” was recorded as “Asian” prior to Fall 2009.

UA Scholars include any recipient who takes at least one course from the campus/MAU.

Campus Profile Trends: Ketchikan

- Ketchikan campus employed 12.4 regular instructional faculty full-time equivalents (FTE) on unrestricted funds in fall 2012, an increase of 1.4 FTE from fall 2004.
- Ketchikan employed 5.3 adjunct faculty FTE* in fall 2012, continuing a decreasing trend.
- Degrees, certificates and credentials awarded by the Ketchikan campus have nearly doubled since FY04.
- In FY12 the programs qualifying recipients to work in High Demand Job Areas accounted for nearly half of all academic program credential awards by Ketchikan.

The Juneau Campus of the University of Alaska Southeast (UAS) is a residential institution located in Alaska's scenic capital city, along the shores of Auke Lake. It offers opportunities to grow and learn in a supportive and intimate learning community amidst unparalleled natural beauty. The Juneau Campus is the hub of the UAS regional university with campuses in Juneau, Ketchikan, and Sitka, and outreach locations throughout the Region.

- The Juneau campus enrolled 2,910 students for credit in fall 2011, an increase of 12.0 percent over the past four years.
- More than 80 percent (110) of the UA Scholars attending UAS in fall 2011 enrolled at the Juneau campus.
- Two-thirds of students taking a class at Juneau enrolled part-time at the UA system level.
- More than half of enrolled students are under 30 years of age, although enrollment by older students is strong. The average age for students enrolled was 32 at the Juneau campus.
- 18,218 student credit hours (SCH) were delivered in fall 2011, excluding auditors, with 61.7 percent in lower division and preparatory level courses.

The University of Alaska Southeast (UAS) Sitka campus (formerly known as Sitka Community College in 1962) shares in Sitka’s heritage of being the former capital of Russian America. Sitka, Alaska’s fifth-largest city, is rich in history and a popular tourist destination. Mt. Edgecumbe, known as Alaska’s Mount Fuji, dominates the horizon across the water from the campus. Located on Japonski Island along with the Southeast Alaska Regional Health Consortium (SEARHC), Mt. Edgecumbe High School and the U.S. Coast Guard, just across the bridge from town, the Sitka campus has maintained its community campus role while serving the needs of students from across the region and the State.

Program Description

e-Learning is planned learning that predominantly occurs in situations where a student is not required to be in a predetermined location. E-Learning courses require a different course design and development, different pedagogical techniques, and communication through instructional technologies.

e-Learning courses are delivered in many forms, including video conference, audio conference, correspondence, telecourses, satellite telecasts, courses available via the Internet, CD-ROM, and/or video/audio tape, etc. A course may be delivered entirely via e-Learning, or by a hybrid of e-Learning and on-campus methods.

Outcomes

Over the past decade, the University of Alaska has steadily expanded its capacity to serve students via e-Learning. Students using e-Learning courses are increasingly focused on pursuing degrees, and an increasing proportion of those students are enrolled full-time. In FY12, nearly 34% of University of Alaska students took an e-Learning course, compared with 29% in FY08.

e-Learning

The number of e-Learning course sections rose by 15 percent in the past 5 years, from 2,747 in FY08 to 3,166 in FY12.

In FY12, 19,022 University of Alaska students participated in one or more e-Learning courses, 28 percent more than in FY08 (14,868).

Among first-time, full-time degree seeking freshmen, those who enroll in e-Learning courses graduated at a slightly higher rate (32.9%) than those who did not (28.9%) in FY11.

Over the past 5 years, the e-Learning student body distribution by race has remained steady. Alaska Native/American Indian students made up 16 percent of students in FY12, reaching an annual student headcount of 3,036.

Traditional age students (18-24) composed 30% of the e-Learning student body in FY12. Students aged 30 to 39 made up 21%.

In FY12, the top 5 e-Learning course subjects, by annual student headcount, were English (9%), Business Administration (7%), Psychology (5%), Mathematics (5%) and Computer Info and Office Systems (5%).

The UAF Rural College accounted for more than 20% of all e-Learning course sections offered at UA in FY12. Kenai Peninsula College offered 11% of e-Learning course sections. UAF offered the most (44%) e-Learning course sections of any MAU.

In the past 10 years, the course completion rate for students who took at least one e-Learning course increased by 8 percentage points. Over the same period, the rate for students who took no e-Learning courses increased by 3 percentage points.

The annual number of graduate students taking e-Learning courses has more than doubled since FY08.

Technical and Vocational Education Program (TVEP)

Description

Career and Technical Education, also referred to as Vocational Education, is planned learning that predominantly prepares students to become successful members of the workforce. The Alaska Legislature established the Training and Vocational Education Program (TVEP) in 2000 to provide training for Alaska’s high-demand occupations. The program is supported with 0.15 percent of the employee unemployment insurance tax, paid by Alaska employers. The tax generates approximately $10 million annually and currently has a sunset of 2014. Funding from TVEP is used for immediate workforce program start-up needs, one-time investments in upgrades to technology to keep programs current, as well as a bridging mechanism to long term program funding.

Funding

In FY13, the total annual amount received for the TVEP program was $5.4 million. The UA System Office of Workforce Programs works with representatives from the UA campuses and the Alaska Workforce Investment Board to identify state priority industry sectors and high-demand jobs, including regional priorities for occupational training programs. The campuses submit proposals based on the identified needs, and funding is distributed to the highest priority programs.

Highlights

- In FY13, the total amount of TVEP funding for University of Alaska reached $5,449,000. This is over a 9 percent increase from FY12 $4,986,000.
- In the past 11 years, UA TVEP funding rose more than 3 fold from $1,781,000 in FY01 to $5,449,000 in FY13.
- Between the years of FY01 to FY13, UAA obtained 49 percent of funding in aggregated amounts, while UAF accounted for 22 percent.
- Anchorage academic organization (AO) led among AOs in receiving the highest aggregated funding of more than $11 million, followed by UAF CTC (3.7 million) and Ketchikan AO (3.2 million).

- Between FY07 and FY12, the number of TVEP graduates rose from 3,084 to 3,871, showing a 26 percent increase.
- In FY12, male students constituted 41 percent (1,579) and female students 59 percent (2,292) of overall TVEP graduates.
- In FY12, Education and Training (546), Business, Management and Administration (347), Health Sciences (374), Human Services (325); and Science, Technology, Engineering, and Research (305) were among the top categories supported by TVEP.
- UA academic programs that graduated most of TVEP students in FY12 were Master’s of Education (137), Bachelor’s of Nursing Science (112), Bachelor’s of Psychology (95), Associate’s of Nursing (70), and Bachelor’s of Elementary Education (71).
